You have received a quote or submittal that contains wood doors with NATURAL BIRCH veneers.

While natural birch is the “industry standard” for birch veneers, there are some issues that you need to be aware of before ordering these doors.

The National Standards allow for a very wide range of appearance for Natural birch. Natural birch veneers may contain both heartwood (the red portion of the log) and sapwood (the white portion) in unrestricted amounts. Thus, natural birch door faces may vary from all white to all dark, any combination of light and dark, or any variation of light to dark.

Because of this wide variation in natural birch faces, there is no way to adequately represent the actual variation you may see in a sample. This means that the doors you receive may NOT look exactly like the sample provided, even if the sample and doors are factory finished.

Because these are normal variations of Natural Birch and are allowed by the National Standards, neither Milanese Commercial Door, LLC nor the wood door manufacturer, will be held responsible for the appearance of natural birch doors, whether unfinished or factory finished.

If your job requires doors with a more uniform appearance please contact Milanese Commercial Door or the wood door manufacturer for recommendations on other veneers.
